

Our Research Culture Principles

We aim to challenge inequalities in the research ecosystem to enable all researchers to pursue and produce high quality research in all its forms and ensure that everyone who contributes to research is valued and recognised.

Inclusive

We will facilitate inclusive research cultures which respect and value the contribution of all who support, engage in, and enable research.

We will support researchers to develop the capacity, and confidence to produce high quality research, and to develop their career pathways.

Ambitious

Fair

We will conduct, share, and evaluate knowledge and research with integrity, openness, and fairness, promoting trust in research processes, and recognising that research quality is realised in many forms.

We will enable a creative, curious, and collaborative research environment that supports ambitious, high quality and impactful research.
