TEACHING IN 2020-21

1/3

Across the UK, quality teaching is taking place this academic year. Universities are providing high quality, flexible options to international students, such as studying online or facilitating later start dates.

There are some exciting and innovative examples of high-quality online learning being delivered by institutions across the UK.

For example, some universities have created virtual ward rounds with virtual patients to mimic clinical decision making for their medical students, while others have developed new ways for students to conduct field work, including the use of hi-res photographs, Google Earth and drone-scans.

If you have any questions about your course, please contact your chosen or prospective university directly.

UK degrees are of a globally high standard and are internationally valuable whatever form they take - whether they are delivered in person or have some elements online.

The UK higher education system demands high quality teaching, and any changes put in place by UK universities due to Covid-19 must adhere to the usual high-quality standards. This is the case whether teaching takes place in person or online.

International students are guaranteed to learn at the same world-leading institutions, with quality teaching and great employment prospects.

2/3

Universities have been adapting by creating blended programmes of events and activities to ensure students are welcomed and to help ensure safe social interaction.

We know that studying in the UK is about so much more than what you learn in the classroom. Whether you are in the UK or undertaking your studies online – your university is there to support you.

UK universities are helping new international students to find information, feel connected and prepared to settle in. There are online platforms where regular events are hosted so students can meet each other and connect virtually. Universities are also helping to facilitate things like online book clubs, quizzes and support services.

If you have any concerns about online learning and WiFi access, please contact your university.

TEACHING IN 2020-21

3/3

Universities are innovative environments and UK universities at the forefront of responding to the Covid-19 pandemic.

Universities have never been more critical. Covid-19 has highlighted the crucial role that universities play in developing and sharing knowledge, bringing together the best minds and facilitating collaborative research to meet the challenge of the pandemic – epidemiologists are sharing their expertise and virologists are leading the development of vaccinations.

Across the world, many countries are adapting and responding to the current crisis by finding new ways of delivering services and managing our everyday lives. Education provision is also affected, and students can expect some things to be different. But universities by nature are innovative environments and they will adapt and evolve to continue to deliver world-class tuition to their students.

Making the decision to leave home and move to another country to study at a university brings challenges for international students, but it also indicates a strong commitment to embrace change and discover new ways of learning.

MESSAGING

WELLBEING

All universities are working hard to welcome international students and have action procedures in place to keep students, staff and local communities safe.

UK universities have implemented a number of Covid-19 support services that international students can access, such as airport pick up services, support through self-isolation periods and food packages. Universities are also offering increased mental health support during the pandemic, with many putting initiatives in place which support students in keeping active and that help them to socialise safely. This includes online activities that facilitate students meeting others during periods when they are required to self-isolate, or for those who are unable to travel to the UK just yet. They also have plans in place to support students if they are required to self-isolate or if local lockdowns are introduced.

If any international students are struggling or have any concerns, we would encourage them to contact their university's student support services.

A programme of mental health support for students during Covid-19, Student Space, has been created for students in England and Wales. Whether it's your mental health, your studies, money, housing or relationships, there are resources and support available to you on the Student Space website.

MESSAGING

PUBLIC HEALTH

1/2

The NHS is available to international students.

The UK's NHS (National Health Service) is one of the world's most advanced healthcare systems, offering safe and modern treatment. Our amazing NHS has taken care of people from around the world during this global pandemic and will continue to do so.

The NHS is an excellent service and is available to all international students. As part of your student visa application, applicants are required to pay the Immigration Health Surcharge. The Immigration Health Surcharge costs £470 per year for a student, giving students access to NHS services without further charge (subject to a few exceptions, such as prescription charges in England). Find out more about this here.

International students will always be able to access treatment that clinicians consider is immediately necessary or urgent at no upfront cost.

The NHS can also provide international students with specific Covid-19 advice through a new Covid-19 online service or by calling 111. No charges apply to testing for coronavirus, even if the result is negative, or to any treatment provided in relation to coronavirus if the result is positive or up to the point that it is negatively diagnosed.

Visit the NHS website for Covid-19 support and advice.

As an international student, you should register for a GP (General Practitioner) as soon as possible on arrival to the UK. Your university will be able to advise on which practice to register with in your local area.

MESSAGING

2/2

The UK government advises that you wear a face covering over your nose and mouth in enclosed spaces.

It is now a legal requirement to wear a face covering over your nose and mouth on public transport in England, Northern Ireland, Scotland and Wales. You must also wear a face covering in most indoor spaces in England, Northern Ireland, Scotland and Wales, such as shops.

View the UK government guidance on face coverings.

The UK government is taking a proactive approach to sharing information with the public.

Visit the GOV.UK website for all the latest information from the UK government about Covid-19.

The UK government has provided guidance for cleaning of non-healthcare settings, which covers environments such as student accommodation and other spaces within the community. Universities will be putting measures in place to ensure campuses are clean and compliant with government guidelines.

The Department for Education (DfE) has produced guidance on self-isolation and social distancing for students living in university or college halls of residence.

MESSAGING

TRAVEL

Universities are working hard to ensure that you know what to expect before you travel, and that you are welcomed and supported on arrival to the UK.

Please note that travel and arrival advice will vary between the UK's four nations. See relevant advice for where you are travelling to below:

- England
- Wales
- Scotland
- Northern Ireland

Remember to also check travel advice in your own country in advance of making your travel plans.

We know how daunting moving to another country can be, and we want to reassure you that universities are working hard to ensure that you know what to expect before you travel to the UK and are welcomed and supported on arrival by your chosen university.

Get in touch with your university to find out more about how they can support you.

See FAQs for more in-depth travel advice from slide 23.

MESSAGING

LANGUAGE

TESTS

The impact of Covid-19 has affected testing centres around the world. Students should check with their university for the latest advice on how they can provide suitable evidence of their English proficiency, as universities can set their own rules.

Students should visit the IELTS website for the latest updates on IELTS test arrangements.

Students may be able to take IELTS Indicator, an online test, taken at home and marked by IELTS examiners. This is available in some countries for those who are unable to attend an IELTS test centre due to Covid-19 restrictions.

Students in China can also take the TOEFL English exam, more details are available on this here.

Some universities are accepting the Duolingo English Test as certification of English proficiency, another online test available to international students.

PTE Academic assesses English listening, reading, speaking and writing all via computer in a single three-hour test session.

If you have been affected by the suspension of language tests, please contact your test provider with any enquiries.

MESSAGING

VISAS

The UK government is working to ensure that existing processes are as flexible as possible, so that international students who are planning to study in the UK can do so.

You only need to apply for your student visa when you can actually travel to the UK – you can study remotely without one before you travel.

For the latest information on UK Visa Application Centres please visit:

- TLS contact for Europe, Africa and parts of the Middle East
- VFS Global for all other countries
- UK service points (UKVCAS)

If your local visa centre is closed due to local restrictions, you can still familiarise yourself with UK visa requirements and talk to your chosen university about evidence you may need to supply for a visa application.

Since the outbreak of the Covid-19 pandemic, the UK government has implemented a number of concessions to assist visa holders in the UK who have been impacted by global travel and health restrictions. This has included offering extensions of visas, relaxing the rules on switching in the UK, and enabling international students to continue existing courses or commence new courses of study by distance or blended learning for the duration of the 2020-21 academic year. Find out more about concessions for students on GOV.UK.

Students will not be penalised for being unable to collect their Biometric Residence Permit (BRP) while Covid-19 measures are in place.

If you have any immigration queries related to Covid-19, please contact the government's Coronavirus Immigration Help Centre at CIH@homeoffice.gov.uk.

MESSAGING

GRADUATE ROUTE

The new Graduate Route, launching 1 July 2021, will enable you to stay in the UK and work, or look for work, at any skill level for two years (or three years for PhD students) after graduation.

This is a fantastic opportunity for international students that will help you to take your next steps into employment after graduation in the UK.

The Graduate Route will be available to international students who successfully complete their degree at undergraduate level or above at a UK Higher Education Provider with a track record of compliance.

If you began your studies in the 2020-21 academic year, you will be able to benefit from this new Route, even if you started your degree online in your home country due to Covid-19.

If you are due to complete your course this summer, but you have been unable to travel to the UK just yet, you will be eligible to apply for the Graduate Route when it launches, as long as you arrive in the UK by 21 June 2021 (this has been updated from the previous 6 April date). Please check additional entry requirements and restrictions that have been introduced before travelling to the UK, and only travel when your university has confirmed face-to-face teaching will resume for your course.

If you started a one-year master's course in January 2021, you will need to arrive in the UK by 27 September 2021 in order to be eligible to apply for the Graduate Route.

This is part of the UK government's concessions to students who have, or will be, applying for student visas in light of Covid-19. View the updated guidance on GOV.UK here, and for more information on the Graduate Route, visit the Study UK website.

FREQUENTLY ASKED QUESTIONS

What support is available to international students in the UK?

We understand this is a very difficult time for many students in the UK. We would encourage any international students who are struggling or have concerns to reach out – contact your university’s international office or student support services.

UK universities have implemented a number of Covid-19 support services that international students can access, such as food packages, support through self-isolation periods and additional technology to support their online learning. Universities are also offering increased mental health support during the pandemic, with many putting initiatives in place which support students in keeping active and that help them to socialise safely.

If you’re an international student in the UK, make sure your university knows about your circumstances and don’t hesitate to get in touch with them if you need support.

Is there any financial support provided to existing international students?

If you are experiencing financial difficulty as a result of Covid-19, get in touch with your university as soon as possible and they will be able to support you.

Many universities and colleges have student hardship funds, and the UK government, as well as the governments of Scotland, Wales and Northern Ireland, have increased the amount of funding available to universities to support students experiencing hardship as a result of Covid-19. In many cases, this funding is available to international and EU students.

Universities are on hand to support all students who are experiencing financial difficulty as a result of Covid-19, particularly in cases where students have lost their part-time jobs. Don’t hesitate to get in touch if you need support – your university is 14 there to help you. Find out more on UKCISA's website.

UNIVERSITIES 2/3

What is 'blended learning'?

'Blended learning' is where teaching is delivered through a mix of formats. For example, lectures will be delivered online, supported by online discussions. Courses that involve practical teaching sessions will be delivered in a safe way, with physical distancing and personal protective equipment provided where appropriate.

Some face-to-face study takes place under a blended learning model, in small groups that will be made safer through the creation of 'bubbles'. This means the same group of students will be taught together throughout the term.

Teaching through blended learning means the safety of students and staff remains top priority, and high-quality teaching can continue. All learning is being regularly reviewed in line with local public health guidelines.

The UK government has confirmed that it will allow student sponsors to sponsor international students for blended learning for the 2020-21 academic year - see guidance here.

Is there a possibility of relaxation of entry requirements to study by universities for students impacted by the virus?

Please contact your chosen institution for further information on entry requirements.

If I have problems with my accommodation, who do I go to?

Whether your accommodation is privately-owned or you are living in university accommodation, speak to your university in the first instance regarding any queries you may have.

FREQUENTLY ASKED QUESTIONS

UNIVERSITIES 3/3

Will there be reduction of fees with online learning?

UK universities are delivering full degree programmes to their enrolled students this academic year, through a mix of online and face-to-face teaching. Therefore no universities have announced plans to reduce their tuition fees.

The UK's academic reputation is world-renowned. Our innovative teaching methods produce successful, versatile graduates who are sought-after by employers around the world. The UK higher education system demands high quality teaching, and any changes put in place by UK universities due to Covid-19 must adhere to the same high-quality standards as usual. This is the case whether teaching takes place in person or online.

Are students still able to find a part time job in the UK?

Many, but not all, students on a student visa can work. This depends on the type of sponsor you have. If you are allowed to work, you will be subject to maximum weekly hours in term time.

If you are eligible to work in the UK, you can apply for jobs, though it might be difficult in the current climate. However, some employers are recruiting additional staff to deal with changes in their way of working. Find out more about working in the UK on a student visa on UKCISA's website.

FREQUENTLY ASKED QUESTIONS

PUBLIC HEALTH 1/3

What should I do if I think I have coronavirus?

Seek prompt medical attention if your illness or the illness in any of your household members is worsening.

If it's not an emergency, contact NHS 111 online. If you have no internet access, you should call NHS 111. For any emergency conditions, if you need to call an ambulance, dial 999 and inform the call handler or operator if you or your relative have coronavirus symptoms as well as any emergency conditions.

When to get a Covid-19 test

Get a test as soon as possible if you have any symptoms of coronavirus.

The symptoms are:

- a high temperature
- a new, continuous cough
- a loss or change to your sense of smell or taste.

The test needs to be done in the first eight days of having symptoms.

You do not need to get a test if you have no symptoms or if you have different symptoms. Find out more on the NHS website.

Tell people you've been in close contact with that you have symptoms.

You may want to tell people you've been in close contact with in the past 48 hours that you might have coronavirus.

FREQUENTLY ASKED QUESTIONS

PUBLIC HEALTH 2/3

Are there steps or precautions in place to ensure the safety of international students?

UK universities are going above and beyond to ensure that students' physical and mental health and wellbeing are prioritised.

The UK government has provided guidance to universities on how to operate safely, and universities have taken a range of measures for campuses and accommodation to be Covid-secure. This includes increases in cleaning, ventilation, handwashing facilities, social distancing and advice on rules of contact and social mixing. Universities have plans in place to support students if they are required to self-isolate.

All UK universities are required to have outbreak management plans. In the event of a local outbreak of Covid-19, universities will work with local public health officials to consider moving to other modes of teaching that reduce face-to-face contact.

The UK government has also supported the creation of a programme of mental health support for students, Student Space, for students in England and Wales. Find out more on the Student Space website, and contact your chosen university for information on what measures they are taking to ensure the safety of international students.

In case of an emergency, who do I contact?

If you have a medical emergency in the UK, dial 999 immediately. If it's not an emergency but you need medical support, contact your GP or NHS 111 online. If you have no internet access, you can call NHS 111. If you have any other problems relating to your accommodation, your studies or your life at university, contact your university's international or support offices and they will be able to help you.

FREQUENTLY ASKED QUESTIONS

PUBLIC HEALTH 3/3

Do I have access to the NHS in case of emergencies, and how soon can I access NHS services on arrival to the UK?

The NHS (National Health Service) is an excellent service and is available to all international students.

As part of your student visa application, you are required to pay the Immigration Health Surcharge. The Immigration Health Surcharge costs £470 per year for a student, and it gives you access to NHS services without further charge (subject to a few exceptions, such as prescription charges in England). Find out more about this here.

International students will always be able to access treatment that clinicians consider is immediately necessary or urgent at no upfront cost, and this is the case as soon as you arrive in the UK. However, you should register with a GP (General Practitioner) as soon as possible on arrival to the UK. Your university will be able to advise on which practices are available in your local area.

Your GP will be your first point of contact for any medical enquiries.

If your GP is closed, or if you are in need of support before you have registered with a practice, you can still access NHS services. You can call 111 which will direct you to the best local service.

If it's an emergency, call 999 or visit your local A&E (Accident and Emergency) department, which manages life-threatening emergencies.

FREQUENTLY ASKED QUESTIONS

TRAVEL 1/7

What do I need to know about travelling to the UK?

The advice on travelling to the UK varies between the four nations. Please see relevant advice below:

England

Passengers from a list of countries are currently banned from travelling to the UK due to Covid-19 strains.

If you are from a country not on this list, please note that all international arrivals to the England must currently:

- complete a passenger locator form
- provide proof of a negative Covid-19 test, taken up to 72 hours before departure
- book and pay for a travel test package
- self-isolate in your accommodation for 10 days on arrival.

You can take part in the Test to Release for International Travel scheme if you are arriving into England, and pay for a private Covid-19 test five days after arriving in the UK. If the test is negative, you can stop self-isolating.

If you are arriving from a 'red list' country, please note that the ban does not apply to those who have residence rights in the UK. As an international student, if you have a student visa (or Tier 4 visa) or you have been granted EU Settlement Scheme (EUSS) leave, then this ban does not apply to you, because you have residence rights in the UK. However please note you will need to quarantine in a government-approved hotel for 10 days on arrival and you cannot use the Test to Release scheme.

FREQUENTLY ASKED QUESTIONS

TRAVEL 2/7

Scotland

Information on travelling to Scotland can be found here. Everyone who arrives in Scotland by air from outside the Common Travel Area must:

- provide proof of a negative Covid-19 test taken up to 72 hours before departure
- before departure book and pay for managed isolation in a quarantine hotel for at least 10 days from arrival, and be tested on days two and eight of your 10-day quarantine.
- complete an online passenger locator form before travelling

Wales

Information on travelling to Wales can be found here. Please note that there is no direct arrival into Wales from travellers who have been in a country on the banned list. If you are travelling from a country not on this list, you will need to provide some information before you travel, provide proof of a negative Covid-19 test, pre-book a testing package and self-isolate for 10 days on arrival.

Northern Ireland

Information on travelling to Northern Ireland can be found here. Passengers arriving into Northern Ireland will need to complete a passenger locator form, provide proof of a negative Covid-19 test before departure, and self-isolate for 10 days on arrival.

Remember that travel and quarantine rules are subject to change, so please continue to check the latest rules while making your plans, and stay in touch with your university for the latest information and support. 24

FREQUENTLY ASKED QUESTIONS

TRAVEL 3/7

My country is on the 'red list'. Am I banned from travelling to the UK?

The UK has introduced travel bans for arrivals from some countries (known as the 'red list'). If you have a student visa (or Tier 4 visa), or you have been granted EU Settlement Scheme (EUSS) leave, then this ban does not apply to you, because you have residence rights in the UK.

However, there are some measures you will need to follow before and after arrival. Please follow the relevant guidance for the part of the UK you are travelling to.

Please continue to check the latest rules while making your plans, and stay in touch with your university for the latest information and support. Your university will let you know when teaching will resume for your chosen course.

England

If you are arriving into England, you will need to quarantine in a government-approved hotel for 10 days on arrival, at your own expense (currently set at £1,750).

- The hotel package will cover the costs of transport, food, accommodation, security and testing.
- Before you travel, you must book your hotel stay and two coronavirus tests for after you arrive.
- You must also take a Covid-19 test up to 72 hours before you travel. After you arrive, on day two and day eight of your quarantine, you will need to take your pre-booked tests.

You cannot take part in the Test to Release scheme if you have been in or through a 'red list' country in the 10 days before you arrive.

FREQUENTLY ASKED QUESTIONS

TRAVEL 4/7

Wales

You cannot travel directly to Wales if you've visited or passed through a country on the 'red list' in the last 10 days. You will only be able to enter the Wales from 'red list' countries via a designated port of entry in England or Scotland and isolate for 10 days in a managed quarantine hotel.

You will need to follow the relevant guidance for arriving into England or Scotland, and complete a passenger locator form, provide proof of a negative Covid-19 test and book and pay for your hotel stay and your testing package.

You will not be able to transit to Wales until you have completed quarantine. Find out more about travelling to Wales here.

Scotland

All international arrivals in Scotland must quarantine in an approved hotel on arrival. You will need to book the hotel in advance. During your stay, you will also need to take a Covid-19 test on day two and day eight of your 10-day stay.

Before you travel you will also need to:

- Provide proof of a negative Covid-19 test, taken in the three days before you begin your journey
- Complete a passenger locator form.

If you are travelling Scotland via England, and you've been in a country on the 'red list' in the previous 10 days, you will need to quarantine in a hotel in England before travelling to Scotland. Find out more about travelling to Scotland here.

FREQUENTLY ASKED QUESTIONS

TRAVEL 5/7

Northern Ireland

If you are travelling directly to Northern Ireland having been in one of the 'red list' countries in the previous 10 days, you must:

- Complete a passenger locator form
- Provide proof of a negative Covid-19 test
- Self-isolate for 10 days along with all members of your household, even if they have not travelled.

If you are travelling to Northern Ireland via Great Britain or the Republic of Ireland, you must follow requirements that have been introduced for that country. That may mean quarantining in a government-approved hotel for 10 days before you travel on to Northern Ireland. More information on travelling to Northern Ireland can be found here.

We know how daunting moving to another country can be, and we want to reassure you that universities are working hard to ensure that you know what to expect before you travel to the UK and are welcomed and supported on arrival and throughout your time at university.

FREQUENTLY ASKED QUESTIONS

TRAVEL 6/7

How will I have access to banks and groceries if I'm under lockdown restrictions or self-isolating on arrival to the UK?

We recommend arranging an international bank account or bank card before you arrive in the UK, as you may be unable to open a bank account in your first two weeks. This will make it much easier for you to buy food and other essentials in case you need to self-isolate for 10 days on arrival. Don't bring large amounts of cash with you.

Lots of local food supermarkets offer online delivery services. You can also order food online from local take-away restaurants to be delivered to your accommodation.

Please see the links below for more information:

- Asda, Iceland, Morrisons, Ocado, Sainsbury's, Tesco, Waitrose

Take-away services:

- Deliveroo, Just Eat, Uber Eats

Remember that your university will have lots of measures in place to support you if you need to self-isolate, so get in touch for more information.

FREQUENTLY ASKED QUESTIONS

TRAVEL 7/7

I'm studying in the UK but wish to return home. Am I allowed to travel?

The current guidance in the UK means that travellers need to have a reasonable excuse to leave the country. Such reasons could include moving home, travelling for compassionate reasons (for example visiting someone in hospital), travelling for study, or if there is a reasonable medical need to do so. More information on reasonable excuses for leaving the UK is available here.

All students in England and Scotland are permitted to travel home once for the Easter break if they wish to do so. However, in order to minimise transmission, and because travel restrictions could change while you are overseas, we would advise international students not to travel, and to instead remain in their term-time accommodation. See the relevant guidance on the spring term for students in England, Scotland, Wales and Northern Ireland.

Please note that there are additional measures in place to minimise travel across international borders and reduce Covid-19 transmission. Everyone travelling out of England will need to declare their purpose of travel in a form which will be checked before departure. Anyone without a valid reason for travel will be directed to return home and may face a fine.

If you wish to return home, you should also consider restrictions in your home country as you may be required to self-isolate when you return, or there may be other measures in place at the border.

Remember to contact your university for advice on your current situation.

FREQUENTLY ASKED QUESTIONS

OTHER 1/4

What's the outlook for graduate employability for international students?

UK graduates are among the most employable in the world (QS Graduate Employability Rankings). 83 per cent of international graduates credit their UK degree for helping them get a job (International Graduate Outcomes, UUKI). So by gaining a prestigious UK education, you'll be respected by employers and academics from all over the world.

The global economic impact of Covid-19 is not yet known. Across the world, many countries are adapting and responding to the crisis by finding new ways of delivering services and managing our everyday lives. This will inevitably impact on the jobs market, creating opportunities in new industries and making others obsolete.

As an international student, will I be able to get the vaccine in the UK?

International students who live in the UK and are registered with a GP (general practitioner) will be able to access the Covid-19 vaccination in the UK, just as they are currently able to access healthcare. This means that older international students or those with underlying medical conditions will fall into priority categories, in the same way as anyone else in the UK.

The NHS will let you know when it's your turn to have the vaccine. Find out more on the NHS website.

What is the current situation in the UK?

To reduce the risk of Covid-19 transmission, there has been a staggered return to universities in the UK this spring. Many UK universities have been teaching online for the spring term, with the exception of certain courses that cannot take place online.

If you are planning on travelling to the UK, remember to check the latest travel advice and stay in touch with your university for advice on your situation. They will let you know when face-to-face teaching will resume for your chosen course.

Please see latest guidance for the spring term below:

England

The UK government has announced that those on practical and creative courses who need access to specialist equipment and facilities can return to campus for in-person teaching from 8 March. All remaining students will be able to return to face-to-face teaching from 17 May at the earliest, in line with the current roadmap out of lockdown. Spring term guidance for students in England can be found here.

Scotland

Universities in Scotland are teaching in-person to a small amount of students and are prioritising those for whom face-to-face teaching is critical. From 26 April, universities will operate within the guidance for their local area. The guidance on the spring term and phased reopening in Scotland can be found here.

Testing on campus

Students in the UK are encouraged to take two Covid-19 tests on arrival back to campus – one immediately on arrival and one three days later. If you're returning from overseas and have completed your period of quarantine (either in a hotel or in your accommodation), you are not expected to be tested when you return to campus. However, please follow your university's guidance on testing as you may be required to take part in regular, asymptomatic testing throughout the term.

There will be continued support available to international students who are already in the UK, as well as any students who are due to arrive in the UK in the coming months.

Universities are delivering high-quality teaching across the UK, whether through online learning, face-to-face or a blend of teaching methods.
